

Don't Miss...

By Michelle Gilzenrat

November 4, 2009

Aloud: Everything I've read about this band's live show suggests a "fiery" "chaotic" and "high-energy" performance. The tunes seem to be all of the above, with a driving rhythm section and bluesy, distorted guitars. Singer Jen de la Osa has some really exceptional pipes, at times forlorn and dreamy like Fiona Apple and at other times roaring like Grace Slick or maybe even a slightly more lilting Janis Joplin. She trades off vocal duties with longtime collaborator Henry Beguirstain who has a more modern rock sound. The duo comes to us from Boston and will be joined on the bill by local acts Great Society and B-Side Revolution. Nutria is playing an early show Monday night at the Caledonia as well, starting at 6 p.m. (Caledonia Lounge, Monday 9)